Monthly Commentary

In October, U.S. equity markets were influenced by employment data, the upcoming presidential election, and the Federal Reserve's rate decisions, all of which supported index performance. However, the Q3 earnings season revealed several major technology companies providing disappointing outlooks, resulting in a correction of mega-cap stocks on the final trading day of the month. This correction led to a 0.91% decline in the S&P 500 Total Return Index for the month.

Notably, large-cap stocks outperformed small-cap stocks, reflecting broader market concerns about the overall health of the U.S. economy. For instance, the S&P MidCap 400 fell by 0.71%, and the S&P SmallCap 600 dropped by 2.64%.

In terms of sector performance, Financials gained 2.69% due to strong Q3 earnings and the recent "disinversion" of the yield curve. Communication Services rose 1.94%, supported by solid earnings from major companies in the sector, while Energy increased by 0.79%, partly due to geopolitical factors. Conversely, linked to the aforementioned concerns, Real Estate, Materials, and Health Care lagged, posting monthly losses of 3.28%, 3.49%, and 4.62%, respectively.

The GBI - Good Governance Fund UCITS C Share Class (USD) declined by 1.98% in October, underperforming the S&P 500 Total Return Index by 1.07%. This underperformance was primarily attributed to stock selection, with overweight positions in Microsoft, Eli Lilly, and AMD contributing to the decline. Additionally, an overweight position in the underperforming Healthcare sector further compounded the fund's challenges.

ESG Commentary on the portfolio and Portfolio Impact Measures

Impact Cubed conducted its annual review of the Good Governance model portfolio (excluding cash) used for the last April rebalancing.

The table below shows to what degree the portfolio analysed contributes to each of the 17 SDGs (Sustainable Development Goals). The contribution is calculated based on the impact exposure of each company to the 15 factors presented in our last monthly report. As an example, the Waste Efficiency measure impacts SDGs 6, 12, 14 and 15, while the Carbon Efficiency impacts SDGs 7 and 15. The measure Impact Cubed uses is a weighted average of all factor exposures (relative to benchmark) mapped to a particular SDG, adjusted for the number of these factors. The weighted average takes into account the direct or indirect relationship between factors and a specific goal. The detailed report is available on request.

Impact-Cubed was originally used to measure investment impact in-house by Auriel Equity Investors LLP. It was spun off as a separate company (currently seeking B-Corp Certification in the UK) in summer 2017 with the intention of becoming a self-sustaining service to the investment community. This service by Impact Cubed helps investors make informed decisions about the way they allocate capital, by shedding light on the varying levels and areas of impact delivered by different investment portfolios.
